THE RECORDS OF JOSIAH PERRY (3).

(3) JOSIAH PERRY, the eighth child of John Perry (2) and Sarah Clary, was b. in Watertown, Mass., Nov. 28, 1684, and d. at Worcester, Mass., Sept. 16, 1767. He was a man of the same sturdy, religious character which characterized his ancestors and a long line of descendants. He m. (1st) Jan. 12, 1708, Berthiah Cutter b. Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 2, 1686; baptized in Watertown, Mass., Aug. 18, 1689; d. Oct. 1735; she was the daughter of Ephraim Cutter and Berthia Wood. Her line of descent was: (1) Samuel Cutter, who d. in England, his widow, Elizabeth Cutter, quite advanced in years, coming to America in 1640. The supposition is that several married daughters of hers came to America about the time of her emigration. One of these (2), Isabella Cutter, was the wife of Thomas Sweetman of Cambridge, Mass. Their daughter, (3) Elizabeth Sweetman, b. Jan. 6, 1646-7, m. Dec. 7, 1671, Benjamin Wellington, and their daughter (4) Mehitabel Wellington, b. Mch. 4, 1687-8; died Sept. 13, 1775; m. William Sherman; and their son (5) Roger Sherman, the Signer of the Declaration of Independence, was b. April 19, 1721. Richard Cutter (2), the younger son of Widow Elizabeth Cutter, was very likely a voyager to America on the ship with his mother. He was a cooper by trade, and was admitted as a Freeman in 1641. This privilege was earnestly desired by every man, and all freemen of that period were required to be orthodox members of the Church, twenty years old, and worth two hundred pounds. In 1643 he became a member of the Artillery Company. About 1644 he married Elizabeth, whose surname is unknown. Her tombstone is one of the oldest now standing in the ancient burying-ground of Old Cambridge, Mass.: "Here lyes ye body of Elizabeth Cutter, wife to Richard Cutter, aged about 42 years: died March 5, 1661-2." Richard Cutter married (2d), Feb. 14, 1662-3, Mrs. Frances (Perriman) Amsden of Cambridge, the widow of Richard Amsden; she survived Richard's decease. Richard Cutter's residence was in Menotomy. He requested to be buried in "Cambridge Buryingplace near his first wife's grave." His monumental stones are in the western part of the yard, and the inscription is perfectly legible: "Here lyes ye body of Richard Cutter, aged about 72 years, died ye 16 of June, 1693." In his will he mentions daughters, and the five sons, Samuel, William, Ephraim, Gershom and Nathaniel of the (3d) generation. Of these (3) Ephraim Cutter appears first at Watertown, Mass., Aug. 18, 1689, where three of his children were baptized. Ephraim Cutter is mentioned in the will of his father, and that of his brother William. The date of his decease is unknown; he was b. 1651; he was a soldier and probably captain in King Philip's War. He m. Berthiah Wood, the daughter of Nicholas Wood and Marcy Williams of Medfield, Mass., b. July 28, 1659-60, and d. Sept. 18, 1731. His children were: (4) Ephraim, (4) Jonathan, (4) Berthiah Cutter b. Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 2, 1686, and married Josiah Perry, as noted above.

JOSIAH PERRY m. (2d) March 10, 1736, Elizabeth Harrington who d. Sept. 26, 1748 (62). The following children were all of the marriage of Josiah Perry with Berthiah Cutter, and were all born in Watertown, Mass.:

- (4) Jonathan Perry b. Jan. 1, 1710.
- (4) Lydia Perry b. Dec. 8, 1711.
- (4) Josiah Perry b. Feb. 8, 1714.

- (4) Isaiah Perry b. Feb. 8, 1723.
- (4) Dorcas Perry b. Dec., 1727.
- (4) Sarah Perry b. 1728.

Our line of Perry history continues with the fourth child in this list; (4) Ephraim Perry b. Nov. 11, 1715. He m. (1st) in 1742 Hannah Holbrook, b. Sept. 11, 1720; d. June 27, 1744; m. (2d) Mrs. Mary Deland Badcock b. Feb. 28, 1725, d. "1745." Her family line was: (1) Robert Badcock, who was a Rater for Dorchester, Mass., in 1657; Supervisor of the Highways, 1660; Selectman of Milton, Mass., 1678-1691, and probably for other years, and was also Captain. In 1672 he bought land "beyond Medfield at that place commonly called Bogistow," now Sherborn, and at Natick; he d. Nov. 12, 1694; and his widow, Joanna, d. Dec. 4, 1700 (71). His son, (2) Ebenezer Badcock, was b. at Milton, Mass., Oct. 2, 1762; lived in Sherborn, Mass., where he d. Dec. 15, 1717; m. Hannah Barbour of Medfield, Mass. Their son (3) Ebenezer Badcock b. Sept. 4, 1697, d. Mch. 27, 1730; m. May 3, 1704, Abigail Leland, daughter of Hopstill Leland and Mary Ballard of Sherborn, Mass. Their daughter

To the Honorable Senate & House of Representatives:

The petition of Ephraim Perry truly sheweth that his son Wilder Perry was aboard the State Ship Protector on her last cruize, and was taken sick with the distemper that prevailed on board said ship, and died some time after his return to Boston. Your petitioner was at great expense for burying and funeral charges, which he conceives ought to be paid by the Government, especially as your petitioner has been drove off his estate and deprived of his interest by the enemy at Penobscot, and obliged to take refuge from their malice in this part of the Government. He therefore humbly requests your honors to give orders for the payment of the annexed account, which will in some measure relieve his present distress, and as in duty bound shall ever pray.

Ephraim Perry.

(5) EPHRAIM CUTLER PERRY b. about 1757; baptized Holden, Mass., June 27, 1756. He was a brave soldier and was severely wounded in the Revolutionary War. M. Nov. 7, 1782, Anna Plimpton, Rev. Samuel Stillman performing the ceremony.

(5) HANNAH PERRY b. about 1760-1762; d. about 1852; m. June 25, 1789 by Rev. Samuel Stillman, Captain Judah Bacon of Boston, Mass. "He was a very wealthy man, but lost his property, and his wife became very poor, and was aided by the Free Masons, and also by her brother, John Perry of North Haven, Me. She went from North Haven, Me., to live with her grandson, George Redding, who had a book store on Milk St., or near there, Boston; he is said to have been connected with the Boston Mercantile Journal. The mother of Gen. Adelbert Ames visited some of these Reddings in 1843, but the name of the family is not mentioned in the Boston City Directory; but there are quite a number of people of that name in N. Y. City; but in correspondence with them I did not find any connection between them and our Perry Line. Redding's Salve, which was once such a popular remedy, was made by some of the family in Boston. Captain Bacon was called 'Jeddah' in some of the old records. He was buried by the Free Masons and some Mercantile Company. He is said to have come from 'Cape Cod way.'"

THE RECORDS OF CAPTAIN JOHN PERRY (5)

(5) CAPTAIN JOHN PERRY, according to the family records, was b. Sherborn, Mass., Oct. 30, 1749, and d. North Haven, Me., Jan. 14, 1833 (84). An old family tradition stated that he was born at Duxbury, Mass., in 1741. One such account gave the date of his birth as Nov. 10, 1750 and stated that he was 90 years old at the time of his death. But we can safely accept the Town records, and also the clear statement of Gen. Adelbert Ames of Lowell, Mass., who has given much time and study to this matter. "I have looked all over the Duxbury, Mass., records and failed to find there any mention of the birth of John Perry. But the Sherborn, Mass., records give us the right date. He died in 1833 and was eighty-four years old. I have lately visited his grave at North Haven, Me., with my Uncle Hezekiah Ames, who was thirteen years old at the time of John Perry's death, and he attended his funeral. At the time of his death John Perry was a member of the family of the father of this Hezekiah Ames, and was buried from his house. My father, John Ames, who was twenty-five years old when John Perry died, told me that he was always known as 'Boston Perry,' and that he had often gone gunning where the Quincy Market in Boston now stands."

From Wilder Washington Perry, "During the winter of 1780, which was a very cold one, John Perry made a trip in his sloop of some ten or twelve tons to Connecticut to visit his brother, and while there he was frozen in a river so that he could not get back as soon as he expected to. He wrote home to his wife, 'Pull the hay from the mow with a hook (to make it last longer), and give my love to the brothers and sisters in the Church.' He was evidently afraid that the boys would waste the hay while he was gone." Gen. Adelbert Ames says, "This brother whom he visited must have been Jonathan or Jesse, for his brother Wilder died that year, and Ebenezer was with him in Boston."

The following sketch of Captain John Perry is taken from a short history of Vinalhaven, Me., written by O. P. Lyons, 1880, and read at the Centennial celebration of that town: "John Perry came to the Fox Islands about 1764. He settled on what is now known as Crabtree's Point, a part of North Haven. He also took up a lot of land between Perry's Creek and Seal Cove, on the south Island, Vinalhaven. About 1779 he was living on this south Island, where he cultivated a small patch of land. He was one of those who suffered much from foraging parties during the occupancy of Castine, Me., by the British. The family traditions assert that he was stoutly hated by the English because, when his neighbors all wished to take a neutral position during the Revolutionary War, he firmly refused to do so, though he should lose all that he had. One day a party of fifteen foragers landed at his place and were helping themselves to his crops, evidently thinking that one man would not dare to resist them. But Perry, selecting a favorable spot, shot two of the party and then fled into the woods. The remainder of the foragers pursued him, but he evaded them by hiding in the trunk of a hollow tree. He remained in this hiding place about forty-eight hours, when it appeared that the coast was clear, and he hurried to the shore, sprang into his dug-out, and paddled to Owl's Head. From thence he went to Boston, but he shortly afterwards returned to his Island farm, and, when this became known to the British, strenuous efforts were made to capture him, but without success. Several times he came near falling into the hands of the enemy, but he always managed to escape. Once, while picking up some sea fowl which he had shot, in the vicinity of Crockett's River, some British appeared on the scene and ordered him to come ashore. He answered that he would land as soon as he had picked up the ducks. His would-be-captors stood carelessly watching him as they thought that he was completely in their power. It was this fact, no doubt, which he keenly observed, for, while pretending to be getting ready to go ashore, he suddenly, with all his might, paddled in the opposite direction. A shower of bullets followed him, but he escaped unharmed. He is said to have been a man of small stature, but full of the pluck and endurance which have characterized so many of his well-known descendants." An account from a Rockland, Maine, journal states, "After Captain John Perry had killed the two men who were stealing his corn, the enemy burned his house and destroyed or carried off everything on the premises, and, when the matter was reported to the British headquarters, a proclamation was issued offering a reward for Perry's capture, dead or alive. He came to the mainland, and erected a house at what is now Rockland Highlands, on the spot where the residence of Hon. S. M. Bird stands to-day. A party of British and Tories was made up to effect his capture, but he obtained information that they were coming, and he was not at home. They burned his new house and destroyed everything about it. Captain Perry then thought it time to devote his sole attention to fighting the invaders, and, procuring a small vessel, and enlisting a crew, he obtained a commission as Captain and did excellent service during the remainder of the Revolutionary War. The British were soon glad to leave that part of the Maine coast."

The copy of the following petition was taken from the Massachusetts Archives, Vol. 171, page 465. It was forwarded to Governor John Hancock of Massachusetts, 1781.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASS:

To His Excellency the Governor and the Honorable Council:

The subscribers, Inhabitants of the town of St. George, in the County of Lincoln, humbly represent to your Excellency and Honors, the Distressing Situation of the Inhabitants of that part of the Commonwealth who are friends to the liberties and Independence of the United States. Being nigh the Enemy, and having no men to Guard, they are continually exposed, and frequently Experience the ravages of the Enemy, the insults and Abuse of the more Infernal Tories, who still reside Amongst us, who now pretend the Government has given us up and will take no further Measure for our Defense, which greatly disheartens many of the friends of the Country. We would likewise inform your Excellency & Honors that there is now Allmost a Free and Uninterrupted Trade carried on between the Enemy and the Inhabitants near Penobscot which we Fear unless speedily checked will prove greatly prejudicial to the Commonwealth. We therefore most humbly & Earnestly pray that such a number of men as you judge necessary may be stationed near Bagaduce to stop the ravages of the Enemy & curb the Insolence of the Cursed Tories, and also pray that you will please to grant a Commission in the name of John Perry for the Boat Fly, which is not intended for the purpose of plundering, (which your petitioners abhor and detest) but for the sole purpose of Interrupting the Trade between the Inhabitants & the Enemy; and your petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray.

In behalf of the Inhabitants of St. George.

JOHN PERRY,
THOMAS THOMPSON.

The granting of this Commission to Captain John Perry is dated Aug. 21, 1781, and is as follows:

Council: Advised that John Perry be Commissioned as Commander of said Boat Fly for the purpose above mentioned, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN W. AVERY, Secretary.

Mass. Archives, Vol. 171, page 487.

To His Excellency, the Governor, and the Hon'ble Council of the Commonwealth of Mass'tts.

The petition of Ebenezer May and others of Boston, Humbly sheweth;

That your petitioners have fitted out a small boat of about three tons burthen, to be navigated by ten men and well armed with Musquets, and intended to cruise near the enemy's Lines at Penobscot, & prevent if possible any communication with the Enemy. Said vessel to join Company with a Boat commanded by Captain John Perry, to whom your Excellencies & Honors granted a Commission yesterday.

I certify the foregoing to be true extracts from the Mass. Archives in the custody of this office. Witness the Seal of the Commonwealth. Isaac H. Edgett, Deputy Secretary.

In 1785 three settlers of Fox Islands, Me., petitioned the General Court that they be granted full possession of the several islands then known as the Fox Islands, and among the names of the petitioners appear the names of John Perry, Ephraim Perry and William Perry. One writes, "I have never considered that these two last petitioners were relatives of John Perry, though we know that he had a brother Ephraim."

Several relics of Captain John Perry have been mentioned by various correspondents, but so far it has been impossible to secure good descriptions or pictures of these. Mr. Jarvis C. Perry, Rockland, Maine, writes, "The old flint-lock gun with which John Perry took summary vengeance on his Majesty's soldiers while robbing his cornfield is still in the possession of a family at Appleton, Me. I tried to buy it awhile since, but without success."

Mrs. William Perry, Vinalhaven, Me., "I know nothing about the gun with which Ancestor John Perry killed the Englishmen. But Mrs. Roxana Dyer has the kettle in which John Perry made a stew on the day when he shot his enemies, and I have often seen it at her house."

Captain John Perry married (1st) Feb. 19, 1808, Lucy Wooster b. May 9, 1759; d. Dec., 1832; m. (2d) Mrs. Perry, who was probably the widow of William Perry (though these two families were not relatives), whose three children by a former marriage have often been counted as the children of Capt. John Perry. There were no children of this second marriage.

Lucy Wooster, the first wife, was a woman of great executive ability. She was the daughter of David Wooster and Lucy Crockett. David Wooster is said to have been born in Chester, or Cheshire, England, Feb. 22, 1732, and d. Aug. 28, 1808 (74); after the death of his parents he came to America with an Uncle when he was but twelve years old, 1744. He is said to have first landed at Boston, Mass. He learned a spar maker's trade and worked at it in Falmouth, now Portland, Maine. In 1760 he bought a beautiful piece of timber land at what is now North Haven, Me., and began clearing it off. Another account says that David Wooster was spar maker to the King of England, and came to Portland, Me., to mark trees that were suitable for spars. After his marriage he settled at North Haven at what is known as the Edward Wooster Place, and on this Captain John Perry is buried. His wife is said to have been of Falmouth, Me., and was probably the daughter of Thomas Crockett who was at Kittery, Me., in 1633. She was classed among the best physicians of her time on account of her great skill in caring for and curing people who were afflicted with various diseases. It is said that David Wooster and his wife had six children: David, Joseph, Nathaniel, Lucy, Lydia, who married John Smith of Smithfield, R. I.; and Margaret who married William Vinal of Boston.

Mass., after whom Vinalhaven, Me., was named. All these children settled at North Haven, Me.

CHAPTER ONE

THE RECORDS OF CAPTAIN DAVID PERRY (6)

(6) CAPTAIN DAVID PERRY, the third child of Captain John Perry and Lucy Wooster, b. Vinalhaven, Me., Aug. 7, 1779; d. at Bailey's Island, Harpswell, Me., Sept. 19, 1818. He was a man of truly noble spirit and greatly beloved by the many who knew him. Early in life he became Captain of a coasting vessel plying between Vinalhaven and Rockland, Me., and Boston, Mass. One of his account books, which is now owned by Rev. C. N. Sinnett, shows well the straightforward and careful manner in which all his business affairs were conducted. After his marriage in 1804 he removed to Bailey's Island, Harpswell, Me., where he bought a cozy home, and from this Island he made many successful voyages to Southern ports. On his last trip thither for a load of hard pine his brother James, and several of the sailors, were stricken down with Southern Fever. During his faithful care of his brother Captain Perry was seized with the same disease, and lived but a short time after reaching Portland, Me. On one of his early trips from Rockland to Portland, Me., Captain David Perry was overtaken by a fierce storm. While some of the crew were complaining that there would be no safe harbor for them, Captain Perry said cheerily, "We shall find a safe shelter at Mackerel Cove, on Bailey's Island. I know lots of Harpswell people, and they have the true kind of hospitality." It was while thus outriding the storm in Mackerel Cove that he met the noble woman, Jane Alexander, who became his wife. He admired her sturdy way of working, and she admired, among many other traits of his, his efforts to keep his crew in good spirits. While doing this cheery work he went to Jaquish Island, just south of Bailey's Island, to shoot some ducks. While hastily loading his flint-lock gun, it was discharged while he was putting the powder into the pan, and the ram-rod was shot through his hand, one finger being so shattered that it was removed by Major Rowe, who then kept a store at the lower end of Bailey's Island. He bore the pain of this accident in the most heroic manner. During the 1812 War the English lay off the Maine coast waiting for a favorable chance to sail up the Kennebec River and capture Bath. Captain David Johnson raised a Company of men on Bailey's Island and marched them quickly away for the defense of Bath, Me. Two men whose hands were disabled were left on the Island to protect it from foragers, one being Richard Orr and the other Captain David Perry. The crew of an English cruiser was watching these movements and thought the Island unprotected, so they stood in shore, and sent a large boat to seize all the sheep they could. As they drew near the shore Captain Perry from behind a cliff ordered them to halt, and, when the order was unheeded, a ringing volley rattled about the boat. The men quickly backed water, thinking that a large number of Yankees were lying in ambush for them. They caught sight of a number of men's hats among the rocks and spruce trees, and more bullets rained upon them. They hastily retreated to their ship, and that vessel moved eastward, thinking that Bath, Me., was not so well protected as they imagined. Captain Perry laughed heartily when he saw that he and three other men, with a number of women, among them his wife, had scared off a whole boat-load of Englishmen. Some of these women had donned the old clothing of their husbands, and made a good Regiment. "You have done so well, that you do not need me any longer," laughed Captain David Perry. So he kissed his wife, jumped into a boat, rowed away to the New Meadows River, and from thence walked to Bath, and joined his comrades. The old flint-lock gun which he carried that day has been preserved among his descendants. Captain David Perry m. June 29, 1804, Jane Alexander, b. Harpswell, Me., April 15, 1784; d. Bailey's Island, Harpswell, Me., June 5, 1861. She was a daughter of Samuel Alexander and Rosannah Clark, and through her Alexander Line was descended from the Alexanders, who settled at Topsham, Me., at a very early date in 1700, and whose history of deep interest has been so carefully written by De Alva Stanwood Alexander, Senator from Buffalo, N. Y. The Clarks were one of the sturdiest families on that part of the Maine coast. Captain David Perry and his wife were very earnest Christians, and for many years she was a member of the Baptist Church on Harpswell Neck. On the death of her husband she was left with six children, but she not only kept these together and trained them to lives of great usefulness, but she became the friend and nurse of the sick people in the neighborhood, being ever willing to go early and late if she could help any person who was in suffering or need. She was a woman greatly beloved.

Although this co-partnership was dissolved some time ago, Mr. Reed still carried on the furniture and undertaking business up to the time of his last sickness. He had twenty-six appointments, among these being Rockland, Bucksport, Searsport, Saco, and the Congress Street Church, Portland, Me. In all his parishes many souls were led to the Master. He was appointed to several of his fields of labor several times, among these to his native town of Harpswell, Me., which was always so dear to his heart. His long ministerial record was marked by great ability and extraordinary faithfulness. He m. Jan. 14, 1841, Mary E. Baston, b. College of Pharmacy. He was a student of fine ability. "When Mr. Perry was but eighteen years old he entered a drug store at Somerville, Mass., and, while not intending to remain there permanently, he did his work thoroughly, for this has been characteristic of his whole life. After a few years he entered the Law School of the Boston University, and after finishing his course he opened an office in Somerville, Mass. Affairs prospered with him, and in 1886 he formed a partnership with Hon. S. Z. Bowman. Though not a politician, in the accepted sense of the word, Mr. Perry has often been called to public offices by the vote of his townsmen. In the middle seventies he was elected to the School Board. Later he was in the Common Council, the Board of Aldermen, and the Water Board. In 1895 he was nominated as the citizens' candidate for Mayoralty, and was elected. He was re-elected in 1896 and 1897. And so well pleased with his administration were his fellow-citizens that would he have accepted it, he would have been named for the fourth term. He did not feel that the state of his health admitted of his serving again. The esteem in which Mr. Perry was held is shown by the following endorsement of his candidacy which appeared in the Somerville, Mass., Journal: "The Committee of two hundred acted wisely we think in choosing Mr. Perry as their candidate; undoubtedly he is the strongest and best qualified man they could have accepted. A sound business man, and a lawyer, he has a wide experience in dealing with Somerville affairs as a member of the Common Council, school committee, water board, and through his connection with local banking institutions. His scholarly culture, his eloquence as a public speaker, and the fact that he represents no clique, or faction, and never has, are all elements in his favor. In his capacity as a private citizen, as well as during the years when he was in office, he has been alive to the best interests of the City, always taking an active part in furthering its welfare. Mr. Perry is conscientious and painstaking, and, as we said last week, is an ideal candidate.' " Another leading journal has well said, "As President of the Somerville, Mass., Bank, Mr. Perry did much to strengthen that institution, and during his office the Bank had a wonderful growth. As Mayor he was a very efficient man. His business life has been spent in Somerville, and he understood the needs of the City and conscientiously performed his duty. He gave his undivided attention to his work, and retired from his office meriting the approbation of the citizens. He is a man of ability and sterling qualities, well-known for his integrity and good judgment, and is a popular speaker in much demand at public gatherings. Maine may justly be proud of her son; Somerville is glad to claim him as a citizen." Mr. Perry m. (1st) Dec. 31, 1874, Mary Ellen Brooks b. Charlestown, Mass., Oct. 26, 1852; d. (7) RACHEL W. PERRY b. Oct. 29, 1828; d. at Lincolnville, Me., Sunday morning, Jan. 17, 1904 (75). "Fifty-two years ago Rachel Perry was united in marriage to Captain Israel S. Adams, and during all these years she was a true and loyal companion. No wife was ever more helpful to her husband. Safe in counsel, the heart of her husband fully trusted in her. Many were the duties and responsibilities which rested upon her during her husband's absences from home, for, for many years, he was one of the best-known sea Captains of Maine. Her life was full of cheerfulness and brightness, carrying to those about her joy and comfort, and especially to the members of her own home. It was here that her Christian life shed forth rays of sunshine amid the perplexities and discouragements of life. Home was her empire, and love its throne, and nothing which she could do to increase the happiness of those committed to her care was left undone. But while her death caused great sorrow to her family, they can rejoice in the Christian influence which she leaves behind her as an inspiration to them to live the life of faith in the Son of God. One of the pillars of the community in which she lived has been removed that it might be placed in the temple not made with hands eternal in the heavens. In this hour of sorrow the sympathy of the entire community goes out to this bereaved family who mourn their loss. Early on Sunday morning she quietly and beautifully as the unfolding of the rose slipped away to the King in His beauty, and to receive a crown of righteousness from His hand. Her kindness and sympathy with every one with whom she came in contact bound her with cords of love to many in the community. Rev. L. D. Evans of Camden, Me., conducted the funeral services. Rachel W. Perry m. Aug. 18, 1851, Capt. Israel S. Adams, b. Lincolnville, Me., Nov. 4, 1825. The Boston Sunday Globe for December, 1909, says, "Capt. Israel S. Adams, formerly of the Florence Leland, recently passed his 84th birthday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Roscoe McKee, 11 Copeland St., Roxbury, Mass. He takes long walks and reads the news of the day. He spends his summers down on his farm at Lincolnville, Me., where he has a small garden. He ploughs and plants and raises all the vegetables used on the home table. Speaking of his rugged health, Capt. Adams says, 'Sick? I should say not. Why, when I first went to sea—I was only a boy of twelve—my Uncle said, No, you'd better stay at home; you'll be seasick. But I went, and I wasn't seasick. And I haven't been sick since. Most of my trips were from New York to the West Indies with general cargoes. I've been in every kind of a storm, but was never wrecked. The quickest and pleasantest voyage that I ever made was from New York to the Canary Islands, then to Brunswick, and back to New York. We made that in two months. The weather was perfect and all the crew in fine condition. You don't often get a long trip like that when everything goes well.' Capt. Adams don't mind wintering in town as long as he can go down East in May and keep in touch with his former business, as well as enjoy his work as a gardener."

In June, 1856, he entered the Military Academy at West Point and graduated the fifth in his class as a Lieutenant, May, 1861. Immediately upon graduating he was ordered to Washington, and assigned duty as an instructor of one of the New York Militia Regiments. In June, being ordered to Griffin's, West Point, Battery, he took part in the first Bull Run action, in which he was severely wounded, and in consequence restrained from active service. Upon his recovery in Sept., he was assigned to Battery A., one of the batteries of the artillery Brigade under command of Col. Hunt, U. S. Artillery, of which he was given command, Oct. 1st. In Mch., 1862, Captain Ames started for Richmond, Va., under Gen. McLellan, when, being stationed at Yorktown, he fulfilled the duties of an engineer officer upon some of the works, in addition to those pertaining to his rank as a battery commander. Besides taking part in comparatively unimportant affairs, his battery was engaged at Garnett's Farm, June 27th, and also at Malvern Hill, for active participation in which campaign Captain Ames was recommended for two brevets. In August, being commissioned Col. of the 20th Regt., Me., Volunteers, he left the Army of the Potomac at Fortress Monroe to take command of that Regiment, which was subsequently assigned to the 5th Corps, and therefore bore a part in the campaign which culminated in the battles of Antietam and Fredericksburg. As numerous cases of virulent disease existed in the Regiment at that time, its members did not participate in the Battle of Chancellorsville, May 3d. Col. Ames, however, having offered his services as a volunteer aid, served in that campaign under Gens. Meade and Hooker. He was then appointed as a Brigadier Gen. of Volunteers, on the 20th of May, and assigned to the command of the 1st Brigade, 2d Division, 11th Corps. Early in the month of June, in command of a picket Brigade, from the different Corps, Gen. Ames, in connection with our cavalry, was engaged in a fight at Beverly Ford, Va., our forces being under the command of Gen. Pleasanton. A few days afterwards he rejoined the 11th Corps and participated in the battle of Gettysburgh, when Gen. Barlow was the Division commander, being wounded, on the first day's fight, the command during the continuance of the battle to 3d of July devolved upon Gen. Ames. On the 6th of Aug. the General, with his command, left the Army of the Potomac to report at Morris Island, S. C., and was there present at the siege of Fort Sumpter."

(7) JERUSHA G. THOMAS b. Mch. 20, 1816, d. Sept. 20, 1906; a woman of truly loving and noble nature, who brightened many homes and hearts in the community where she lived; m. Dec. 10, 1837, Nathan A. Farwell b. Unity, Me., Feb. 24, 1812, d. Dec. 10, 1893; the very efficient President of the Rockland, Me., Insurance Company; the son of Henry Farwell and Margaret ——— of Unity, Me. Obituary in a Rockland, Me., Journal: "He was of sturdy New England stock, His early life was cast along vigorous lines, and his education such as could be had in rural districts of that time. He taught schools at the age of twenty years, and two years later came to Rockland, Me., and from thence to East Thomaston, Me. On the busy industrial history of that growing town he made an early impression. He was in trade; engaged in lime burning; built ships; and, at one time, commanded vessels in the coasting trade; afterwards sailing over deep waters in the Bark Epicure, in which he made much money. The Rockland Marine Insurance Company, one of the most successful institutions that Rockland has ever known, prospered under Mr. Farwell's management as President, paying large dividends, and making handsome returns on the final liquidation. He was the principal shareholder. He owned considerably in store and house property about the city of Rockland, notably the Farwell Opera House Block which he built with the late Capt. A. F. Ames. Originally a Whig in politics, he became a Republican on the organization of that party, and henceforth was a power in politics in that part of Maine. He was elected State Senator in 1861, and in 1863-1864 was President of the Senatorial body. In 1864 when William Pitt Fessenden resigned as U. S. Senator to accept the portfolio of Secretary of State, Governor Cony appointed Mr. Farwell to the vacancy, and he sat in National Senate amid the most distinguished compeers as a man that reflected the honor of the State of Maine that he represented. He was broad and noble in his political views, a man without fear, and without reproach, a politician of the Hannibal Hamlin type, the man whom he dearly loved and honored. His relatives who survive him are, Hon. Joseph Farwell of Unity, Me.; Mrs. Louisa Whitney of Newport, Me.; Mrs. Deborah A. Milliken of New Orleans, La.; the wife of Richard Milliken. In spite of the heavy snow storm which prevailed, the funeral of Mr. Farwell was a very large one. The Banks of the city were closed, and the Supreme Judicial Court adjourned its session, out of respect for this most worthy man. He had a noble, commanding form; he was alert and vigorous, and took a keen interest in affairs at home, and in the nation, and in the world. His mind embraced large things, and he kept in touch with the progress of events. His manner was kindly, and he was very tolerant of the views of others, and no spot of dishonor marred the uniform fairness of his character. He was liberal and just with poor men, and dispensed a generous bounty; daily doing many good deeds, and so unostentatiously that only the recipients knew what he had done; and thus the prayers of hundreds of grateful people followed him. He quietly fell asleep in death while his daughter was reading to him. This motto which was placed among the many beautiful flowers upon his casket was singularly appropriate, 'Thou shalt come to thy grave in full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season.' "

July 15, 1899. "His funeral services were held in the Second Congregational Church of Boston, Mass., Dr. Edward E. Hale and Rev. Dr. Donald officiating. He was pre-eminently a scholar. He graduated from Dartmouth College in 1855, and his reputation there was only equalled by Mr. Choate and Professor Putnam. He never failed in any exercise in his College course. At the Bar, in Congress, and upon the Bench, all who had to do with him felt that he had mastered all attainable knowledge on the subject under discussion. He was not a mere bookman; his mind presided over all that he read. He was of sterling New England ancestry. After studying law for awhile he returned to Dartmouth College to teach mathematics for a year, and then came to Boston to complete his legal studies, at Harvard Law School and in the office of Mr. Harvey Jewell. He was admitted to the Bar in 1860, and at once commenced his law practice in the office where he had fitted himself for work. He remained there until 1865 when he was successively Assistant U. S. District Attorney for Mass., for four years, under

Richard H. Dana and George S. Hilliard, and Assistant U. S. Attorney General under Hon. Rockwood Hoar for about a year. He returned to his old place of work in Boston, Mass., in 1870, was elected to Congress 1876, and held this seat until it was given to Mr. Dana by a Democratic Congress, Mch. 28, 1877. He was returned to his seat at the next Congressional election. He declined to again be a candidate, although strenuously urged to do so. His course in Congress was particularly satisfactory to his District. He was appointed to the Bench of the Supreme Court by Governor Long in February, 1881, and was made Chief Justice in 1890, when Chief Justice Morton resigned, by Governor Brackett. He served as a member of the Boston School Committee for two years, and was a member of the Boston Common Council for three years, and was also a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives. He was one of the Justices who tried the celebrated Mrs. Robinson poisoning case. He was a life-long member of Dr. Edward Everett Hale's Church, serving for many years on its Standing Committee, and taking a vital interest in the affairs of the congregation. Rev. Dr. Hale preached his funeral sermon."

July 1, 1898; proprietor of a stove and tinware business. "As he was one of fourteen children in the home of a farmer of small means he left home when but fifteen years of age, walking from Saco to Portland, Maine, in quest of work. He learned the tinsmiths' trade at Bangor, Me., and then went to Rockland, remaining there some years. There he met his future wife, and they were married on a beautiful, summerlike day in April, and soon after their marriage they moved to Bangor, Me., where they lived for many years, their children all being born in that city. Just before the Civil War Daniel Sawyer became afflicted with the Western fever and went to Kansas and Indiana, where two of his brothers lived, to test the climate, etc. He enjoyed his visit, but he was entirely cured of his fever and never mentioned going West again. After the Civil War business was dull, and his health was not very good, and he bought a farm in Milo, Me., and moved his family there. But the experiences of four years convinced him that he was never intended for a farmer. So, as his brother, Thomas Sawyer, wished to retire from business at Oldtown, Me., an arrangement was made with him, so that he remained in Oldtown until his death; business was very good, and, in a moderate way, he prospered so that year by year he felt that he was laying up a little for his old age. He had many pleasant outings, one of these being to the World's Fair in Chicago, which he took with his youngest daughter. He and his wife were members of the Methodist Church, but he attended the Baptist Church for many years, and was a very efficient teacher in its Sunday School. He was buried in the Forest Hills Cemetery. He was the son of Andrew Sawyer and Elizabeth Brown."

Being very tired, and having had no sleep for three nights, he went to a hotel instead of returning to his vessel. He went to his room about eight o'clock, and when the bell boy went his rounds at eleven o'clock he noticed the smell of gas coming from Captain Thomas' room. Men quickly obtained keys and entered the room, but Captain Thomas was dead. He had been robbed, and the general opinion is that he had been suffocated with chloroform, and the gas turned on for a blind. A physician was at once summoned, but he could do nothing. It is supposed the robbers left the window open so as to disclose the escaping gas, and that they did not intend to kill him. He was a very smart, capable young man." M.
